

Game: Ladders

Purpose: competitive, moderately active game for fun or telling stories

Have all your group pair up and sit on the ground with their legs outstretched opposite their pair. Get each pair to space out enough so that there is about 2ft space between each pair. Now the pairs are competing against each other and the teams are each side of the ladder.

Depending on your story, give each pair a word or phrase that is for them both. When the word/phrase is said they must run down the ladder and round to their place. The first person out of the pair back to their seat, wins a point for their side.

You could use this for fun, having a story about a zoo with each pair being a different animal. Alternatively you could tell stories from the Bible with each pair being a character or item.
