

Game: Read my lips

Purpose: a small group game with very minimal preparation needed!

Gather your group and divide them into two teams. If you have a smaller group, you could work as one big team and set challenges for the one team.

Helpful for the game are a pack of index cards, pen & a timer.

The game runs with each team having to guess a word or phrase which is being mouthed by the upfront team member. To prepare, write out a variety of words or phrases. They can be simple words or relate to your theme.

Split the group into two teams. Start by asking 1 player from the first team to come to the front. They should face their team. Give them a word or phrase. They have 30 seconds to mouth the word while their team tries to guess. Continue by the teams taking turns. Teams get a point for each correct guess. The winning team is the one with the most points!

Upfront players can only use their mouths, they can't speak or make sounds or act out. You might want to give the other team an opportunity to steal points if they guess the other team's clue!
